- 1) Based on the generated department CSV file, 4944 classes were accounted for.
- 2) Assuming that de-duplication means removing cross-listed and equivalent classes, 2422 classes remained after removing cross-listed classes. The method included iterating through the list of classes and cross-checking the classes against a running counter of equivalent classes. Once a class was included in the final list, the equivalent classes were banned from the final list.
- 3) Romance Language and Literature (SPAN) had the highest class count at 323
- 4) The following distribution was found for Fall, Winter, Spring:
1423
1536
1630

There is no notable difference, perhaps a very minor increase from fall to winter to spring.
